

Call for Artists: Looking for Transgender & Gender Diverse Videographers!

Introduction:

Ingersoll Gender Center is one of our country's oldest organizations by and for transgender and gender diverse communities. You can find out more about us and our work online at www.ingersollgendercenter.org.

We believe that all transgender and gender diverse people should have access to gender affirming healthcare regardless of their gender identity, race, income or zip code. As a part of that work to build that vision into a reality we will be producing a series of healthcare information and advocacy videos. We are looking to work with transgender & gender diverse videographers to produce a series of five to eight videos that are three to eight minutes in length.

Who We're Looking For:

- Experienced artists who can help us capture our work and vision for healthcare access.
- Artists with experience in and/or working with transgender and gender nonconforming communities
- Artists who are able to work with a deadline and are communicative about needs, support, and changes as they come up

Timeline:

- We are hoping to select our videographer by the end of June.
- We will spend July and the beginning of August outlining our video series.
- We hope to shoot our video series in July through August.
- We hope to begin premiering our video series in the beginning of October.

How to Apply:

To apply, please send an email to mattie\(at\)ingersollgendercenter.org with the following materials:

- A short description of your connection to and work with the transgender & gender diverse communities.
- Two examples of video you have produced, directed or edited.
